

COMMUNICATION STUDIES MINOR

The communication studies minor equips students to understand the fundamental communication social issues faced by our globalized world. They come to appreciate how communication can persuade, comfort, alienate, or bring the world together.

This 18 credit minor will help students learn to use communication skills to produce messages, texts, campaigns, and projects in a way that is creative, culturally literate and convincing. Because of this, the minor is a very good complement for majors in the College of Arts and Sciences as well as Education, Business, and Social Work.
